WHEELING, MARCH 10, 1894.

Had For Breckinridge.

The case against Col. Breckinridge opens badly for the Kentucky congressman. It will be interesting to see how he will attempt to meet the point blank testimony of Mrs. Blackburn and the chief of police of Washington. Both testify to admissions of promise of marriage in their presence.

Mrs. Blackburn is not a woman to perjure herself. The chief of police is a man of the very highest standing in his community. It is not probable that either of them is mistaken. Mrs. Blackburn has only too good reason to know that Col. Breckinridge brought Miss Pollard to her and asked her special protection for her on the ground that she was to be his wife as soon as his first wife should have been dead long enough for him to marry with some show of decency.

Mrs. Blackburn has since learned more than she knew then, more of Miss Pollard and more of Col. Breckinridge, and in the light of her better information she made the significant remark before the court that if she had the protection of a husband her presence there would not be necessary.

The meaning of this was that if her husband were living he would have saved Col. Breckinridge the mortification of appearing as defendant in a breach of promise suit in which his wife had been compromised by Col. Breckinridge. It does not matter what sort of woman Miss Pollard is, the question before the jury is whether Col. Breckinridge promised to marry her.

CHAIRMAN WILSON laid great stress on free raw materials. He was consistent, for that is the Democratic idea. The senate explodes that Democratic idea.

The Garbage Contractor.

Next Monday the health committee of council is to meet to consider bids for the removal of the garbage. This time the matter seems to have been taken up with more than ordinary caution. Every member of the committee knows, as every resident of Wheeling knows, that the collection of garbage in this city has been a costly farce.

Not only so, but it has been tacitly understood that the contractor was to collect his pay with religious regularity and to gather up at times suiting his convenience a little garbage to show that he had not entirely dropped out of the business.

It is very significant that as soon as the impression got out that the new contract would carry with it an obligation to collect the garbage, and that was the intention to enforce the provisions of the contract, one of the bidders, prudent man that he was, withdrew his bid and gave notice that if the terms of the contract were to be binding on him he would have to have more money.

The committee and council should not ask a better lesson than this. If the people's money is to be paid out on a garbage contract council should see that the people get a return in the removal of their garbage. This appears to be the intention of council, a resolve which will have the popular approval.

The moral of it all is that the Register should have been studying the tariff question instead of talking on it.

Way Off on Wool.

The Register of yesterday told its readers that coal, iron ore and wool have been "transferred from the free to the dutiable list," in the senate amendments to the Wilson bill. In its editorial columns it says:

Wool is given an all around duty of 25 per cent by the senate committee. This is a considerable reduction from the McKinley taxes, and so far so good. Now pass the bill.

The senate sub-committee proposes changes in the nature of reductions in the duties on manufacturers of wool. There is no change whatever in unmanufactured wool. In the senate bill it remains just where it was placed in the Wilson bill, and that is on the free list.

The twenty-five percent duty which the Register does not understand is on wool advanced by certain processes of manufacture beyond the washed or scoured condition; and this rate, instead of being an advance over the rate in the house bill, is a reduction.

The American wool-grower had no "pull" on the senate sub-committee and was given no consideration. Nor was it supposed that he would get any.

The one thing determined from the time the country handed itself over to the Democratic party was that if any tariff bill were passed it would contain a free wool provision, and further that if the Democratic party failed in all other features of its tariff programme it would bend all its energies to the passage of a bill to remove the duty from wool.

Col. BRECKINRIDGE is twenty-seven years older than Miss Pollard, yet in the presence of Mrs. Blackburn he permitted her to call him "Willie." O Willie, how could you!

Good Lord, Good Devil.

The Register gave itself over completely and unreservedly to the support of the Wilson bill as it went from the house to the senate. It was particularly pleased with those provisions of the bill which put on the free list coal, iron ore and wool.

The amendments of the senate sub-committee put a duty of forty cents a ton on coal and iron ore. They do not put any duty on wool, although the Register thinks they do. But with coal and iron ore restored to the dutiable list and under the misapprehension that "wool is given an all around duty of twenty-five per cent by the senate committee," the Register urges its party to "pass the bill."

To take from the free list these important raw materials about which the free traders have been howling is to change radically the character of the bill; but it does not change the Register's attitude with respect to the bill. It is not the same bill, and it is impossible for both bills to pass, but the Register is ready with the same advocacy.

Which bill is it that the Register wants passed, the house bill or the senate bill? Technically it is the same bill amended. Commercially there are two bills, one founded on the Democratic theory of free raw materials, the other based on dutiable raw materials for certain industries and free raw materials for others.

If the house refuse to concur in the senate amendments the bill as proposed to be amended by the senate will go to a conference committee. What will the Register do about it all then, urge the passage of the house bill, or the passage of the bill as amended by the senate, or wait until the row is over and shout for the result, whatever it may be, as the very thing the Register wanted from the beginning?

The situation is wretchedly embarrassing for a Democratic organ eager to grind its party's tunes and striving to catch the key. There is always danger of getting the wrong key.

SENATOR BRICE thinks the senate will pass the tariff bill as prepared by the sub-committee. Mr. Brice has been one of the "conservatives," otherwise kickers.

Hit Again and Harder.

The stogie manufacturers of Wheeling protested against the Wilson bill tax of three dollars a thousand on their product. The senate bill sees the three dollar tax and goes it two dollars better. If a three dollar tax was bad a five dollar tax will be worse by two-thirds.

And West Virginians interested in this industry have only Democratic in Congress to turn to the hope that they may be willing and able to induce a Democratic Congress to let them live!

There are multiplying evidences of the mistake West Virginia made when she helped to put the Democratic party where it could do these things.

Congress isn't guilty.

As the days go by it seems more and more probable that Dr. Cronin murdered himself, threw his mutilated body in the catch-basin and did divers and sundry other things with intent to cast suspicion on certain innocent persons. Dr. Cronin should not have done this.

Every Little Helps.

The Charleston Gazette is so rejoiced over the senate bill placing a duty of forty cents a ton on coal that it prints at the top of its first page in red letters, "There is a Tariff on Coal."

Not quite, in the sense of being put there in a Democratic tariff act. It has to run the gauntlet of the house, which demands coal on the free list. "There is a tariff on coal" in the present Republican tariff law, and this would suit the Gazette and the industry it champions better than the senate bill by just thirty-five cents.

These are indeed hard times for Democrats who want protection. The Democratic party denounces protection as unconstitutional.

The New York World says the sugar trust "is an illegal and criminal conspiracy to rob the people under the forms of law. If we had an honest and faithful attorney general the conspiracy would be broken up and the conspirators sent to jail." That, of course, would be a good thing. Instead of that they got their work in on the senate tariff bill.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

THE TROY TRAGEDY

Said to be an Outcome of an A. P. A. Feud.

Troy, N. Y., March 9.—It is alleged here to-night that the election fracas resulting in the death of Robert Rouse was the outcome of an A. P. A. feud between him and "Bat" Shea, who is a Catholic, and Boland, who is excommunicated from the Catholic church, and who recently became a Republican. It is said that in the caucus a few weeks ago the dead man had violent words over the question of endorsing Whelan, who is also a Catholic, and that in a fracas that occurred he was hurt.

Shea, who was interviewed at the jail to-night, says: "Whoever fired that shot that killed Mr. Rouse fired it from behind him and probably at me, for I was facing him when he fell. I did not shoot. After several shots were fired I felt a pain in my neck and dropped. I had my revolver in my hands."

TREND OF TRADE

Confidence in the Future Not Increasing.

It G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.
New York, March 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review: Evidence of present improvement in business multiply, but confidence in future improvement does not seem to increase. There is more business, and a larger production by industries, for the season has arrived when greater activity is necessary. If dealers' stocks are to be replenished, and those who cannot make calculations beyond a few months are the more anxious to crowd as much trade as they safely can into those months. In some branches of distribution, however, there are indications of a diminishing demand for goods and the evidence preference for low price articles, with the well-known reduction in wages and family expenditures, lead many to feel some less confident that business will soon recover its former volume. Undertakings reaching beyond a short time are not made at greater freedom and in spite of a larger present demand prices of manufactured goods tend downward.

The most distinct gain is in iron and steel manufacture. The output of pig iron increased 10 per cent, though it is still 37.8 per cent less than a year ago. Trade in bar iron is very unsatisfactory. Rails are flat and with a larger production of coke, contracts are made at as low prices as ever. Tin is lower with a fall at London being quoted here at 18.5 cents and copper does not improve, though lead is slightly higher.

In woollen manufacturers are increasing production mainly in a tentative way, or on orders which are little more than sufficient to test the market. In the past five weeks the decrease has been only 12 per cent, which is a marked improvement, in part due to the fact that the mills having no orders are buying at once what wool they expect to need for months to come.

The number of failures during the past week has been 248 in the United States against 193 last year, and sixty in Canada against thirty-two last year.

TO RESTRAIN THE SALE

Of the Producers' Oil Company to the United States Pipe Line Company.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 8.—A bill in equity has been filed in common pleas court No. 1, having for its object the prevention of a big oil deal between the Producers' Oil Company and the United States Pipe Line Company. The plaintiff is John J. Carter, and the defendants are the Producers' Oil Company, J. W. Lee, A. D. Wood, Clarence Walker, P. M. Shannon and Theodore N. Barnsdall, managers of the company.

The plaintiff's bill sets forth that the Producers' Oil Company is a partnership association with a capital stock of $300,000. The principal office of the concern is in Warren, with a branch office in Pittsburgh. Some time in February the managers held a meeting at Warren and sold the property to the United States Pipe Line Company. An injunction is asked to restrain the sale on the ground that the United States Pipe Line Company has no right under its charter to make the purchase. It is claimed that if the transfer is made it will give the United States Pipe Line Company control of the Producers' and Refiners' Company, injure the business of the Producers' Oil Company, and do the plaintiff irreparable damage.

INDEMNITY DEMANDED

By the German Admiral at Rio and Granted by Da Gama.

BUENOS AYRES, March 9.—A despatch from Rio Janeiro states that the German admiral has demanded of the insurgent commander the payment of an indemnity for the seizure of a lighter, also for firing upon a German steam launch. The lighter at the time it was seized was lying alongside the German steamer Catalina. According to the dispatch Admiral Da Gama has acceded to the demands of the German admiral.

MAY SURRENDER.

Da Gama Said to Have Given Up Hope for the Insurgent Cause.

Rio De Janeiro, March 9.—There are reasons to believe that Admiral Da Gama considers the chances of success on the part of the insurgents almost hopeless, and that he is seeking an opportunity to surrender to the fort commanders.

This is thought to be due to the failure of Da Mello to reinforce him from the south, and to the fact that he may be overwhelmed at any time by the arrival of the government fleet.

CRUSTED SCALY SKIN

Torments Minister's Family. Almost Drove Wife Mad. Doctors Useless. Instant Relief and Speedy Cure by Cuticura.

Three years ago my wife, four little children, and myself were afflicted with a crusty, scaly disease of the skin. It tormented us all. Such a plague I hope will never again visit my family. My children's ages were respectively nine, seven, and four years, except the youngest, who was only two months old. Of all our suffering, my wife suffered the most. It almost drove her mad. The disease first made its appearance on my wife's back between the shoulders and spread across to her breast. It looked like it was covered over with little scales. I first bought of a drug store, medicine for skin diseases, which failed to do any good whatever. Next I employed a doctor who gave relief for a short while. After trying him for quite a while without effecting a cure, I called in another doctor who proved to do no better than the first. After this I bought CUTICURA REMEDIES of Messrs. Purcell, Ladd & Co., Richmond, Va., having read of them in a newspaper. Relief followed the first application, and five or six days cured all of us. I do not know what the disease was, but it effected us all alike, but I do know CUTICURA cured us of that skin disease.

A NERVOUS WOMAN.

What She Thought About Nerves.

The nerves are the most important part of the system. If they are weak, the person is run down, tired, languid and does not feel like doing anything. She can sleep but little, her mind wanders, her appetite is gone and what she can eat does her no good.

This is the condition Mrs. Milo Griffith, a well-known lady of Moretown, Vt., found herself in and the reader will see by the following letter that she knew what to do to get well.

"About seven years ago," she says, "I was taken with very severe nervousness and could not work. I could not just drag around. I also had the asthma badly. I was so nervous that at times I could not lay in the house, but felt as though I must go out in the street and run."

"I had no appetite and what I did eat laid heavily on my stomach and sometimes distressed me severely. I had seen Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy advertised and heard it most highly praised, and determined at once to take this medicine which was so favorably spoken of by everybody. I had only taken it a short time when I began to feel the good results from it, and am now entirely cured of all my complaints."

MRS. MILO GRIFFITH.

"I was so confined to the house that I could not go out evenings at all to any amusements, but now can go when I please. When I commenced the medicine I weighed 96 pounds and now have got back to 132 pounds. I coughed and wheezed so that I would almost fall down."

"Nobody could suffer any more than I did, but now my asthma and nervousness are entirely cured and the medicine that did it was Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I eat and sleep well and do my housework as comfortably as ever. I heartily recommend the Nervura to all. It is the most wonderful medicine I have ever found."

There are thousands of women suffering just as Mrs. Griffith was. They are so nervous they cannot control themselves, they have no power to throw off that terrible down-hearted, discontented feeling and many feel as though they would go insane. Are you afflicted in this way? If so you will surely be cured by using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is the most wonderful medicine in the world to cure disease, and it is just what you want.

The spring is always the best time to take this medicine. It is the discovery of Dr. Greene, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter, at his office, 35 West Fourteenth street, New York City.
